Credit for the quality of the journal goes first and foremost to the authors. They contributed a great deal of effort and creativity to produce this work, and we are very thankful that they chose Journal of Nutrition Research, as the place to present it. All of the authors who submitted papers, both accepted and rejected, are responsible for keeping the papers program vital. Credit also goes to the Reviewers (Sarah C Forester, Dept of Food Science, Pensilvania State University (Email: scf12@psu.edu) and Chandrasekar, Vaishnavi, Dept of Food Science, Penilvania State University (Email: vzc112@psu.edu), who donated enormous blocks of time from busy schedules to carefully read and evaluate all submissions. Each submission received two reviews, one from the editorial board members, of Journal of Nutrition Research. Committee members were chosen for their leadership in the field, their reputation for honesty and good judgment, and their capacity to enjoy and appreciate other people's work. They all scrupulously avoided any involvement with decisions on papers they were connected with in any way. We also like to thank all of co-authors of these proceedings for their helpfulness, patience and, most of all, great collaboration.

We do very believe that reading of this issue will be interesting for you.
